Someone once asked, "Suppose we approached conversation aesthetically, looking for elegance, beauty, and simplicity. Suppose we listened to discover the beauty of others' ideas instead of picking out flaws?"

Do you desire to have this type of conversation with others who are working to end or prevent human trafficking in Washington State?

If so, this conversation café is for you!

Join us in discussing how individuals, members of community and faith-based groups and organizations can:

- ✓ achieve their human trafficking goals;
- ✓ honor and respect the work of others engaged in different aspect of this work; and
- ✓ work together to make a collective impact to end human trafficking in WA State.

We also need your voice to identify a set of values you believe in and would like to see as guiding principles for moving forward together.

Human Trafficking Conversation Café Goal

To create a space for all individuals, community groups, government, and faith-based groups and organizations to have a critical conversation to create a collective community of achieving their human trafficking goals, honor and respect the work of others and work together to make a collective impact to end human trafficking in Washington State.

Discussion Topics:

- How will we work better together to collectively end and prevent human trafficking in Washington State?
- When we disagree, what mechanism will we use to compassionately resolve conflict?
- What set of values do we believe in and will use as guiding principles for moving forward together?
